It is only January, but I.C.E. has already murdered nine people this year. I am scared that this number will only grow and grow. How can we protect each other? It can feel so hopeless resisting heavily armed agents who shoot, maim, kidnap, and terrorize our communities with impunity. I wanted to share a few things you can do right now to fight back. Resistance has momentum: once you take action in one small way, you'll learn about more ways to help. And lots of small actions add up.

PUT THIS NUMBER IN YOUR PHONE:

If you witness suspected I.C.E. activity, text that number with the time, date, location, and a description of what you saw. It is the # of our local Rapid Response network. They will verify the report and help spread the word so that our communities can be aware of risks in our area.

share what you've got

Donate to mutual aid funds and the emergency and legal funds run by immigrant advocacy agencies. If you have a laser printer, make copies of free zines (like this one) to share and distribute. If you've got a 3D Printer, print some whistles to giveaway. etc. etc.

know your neighbors

Learn from the folks resisting I.C.E. in Minnesota and create strong communities of care. Start at home: Get to know your neighbors. Care for each other. Host a potluck, create a Block Group Chat in Signal, lend each other tools, help each other out. When you get to know one and other, you learn what your community needs and how you can be of service. You build trust.

boycott

Hit major corporations that support I.C.E. where it hurts them most: their profits. Start by boycotting:

AMAZON TARGET HOME DEPOT
